MAVERICK CONCERTS
MUSIC IN THE WOODS

Maverick Concerts returns this summer with a full schedule of world class classical, jazz, contemporary and family concerts beginning on July 2 and running through September 11. A national historic treasure nestled in the woods near Woodstock, NY, the Maverick Concert Hall presents concerts on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, including three Maverick Family Concerts on Saturday mornings.

Freedom and Joy: Duke Ellington, Joseph Haydn and Voices of Color in American Music will be the cornerstone of the 106th season of the Maverick Concerts. This special mini-series is supported by a grant from the National Endowment of the Arts. The music of composers Joseph Haydn, “The Father of the String Quartet,” and Duke Ellington, a superstar of American jazz, serve as inspiration for Maverick’s 106th season of legendary classical, jazz, and contemporary music. Haydn and Ellington’s infectious charm will cast its spell throughout the Maverick’s eleven weekends of “Music in the Woods.”

The Maverick 2022 season begins on Saturday evening July 2, with a special 50th Birthday bash in celebration of the acclaimed NEXUS Ensemble, led by Woodstock legend Garry Kvistad featuring special guests Paul Winter and Brazilian pianist, Henrique Eisenmann. Opening festivities continue on Sunday, July 3 with an 85th birthday nod to American music living legend Philip Glass—along with classics of Beethoven and Bach—by two of the most exciting stars in classical music today, pianist Simone Dinnerstein and violinist Tim Fain.

Jazz, contemporary and world music hold a special place on Saturday nights at Maverick Concerts. Woodstock legends share the stage with talents from all over the musical world. Woodstock favorite Simi Stone makes her Maverick solo debut on July 16; Woodstock’s luminary of folk music, Happy Traum, returns on July 23, with Cindy Cashdollar, David Mansfield, and Zach Djanikian. Masters of Palestinian music, Oud virtuoso Simon Shaheen and Trio, make their debut at the Maverick on July 30, and Christian Sands—one of the finest young pianists in American jazz today—returns to the Maverick with his trio in a program celebrating the genius of Duke Ellington and Billy Strayhorn (August 6).
Continuing the eclectic Maverick spirit, Steve Gorn, Woodstock's own master of Indian classical music, returns for another splendid evening of Indian Ragas with friends from the Subcontinent on August 13; and barnstorming New York pianist Anthony de Mare, long famous for his explorations into the music of Stephen Sondheim, makes his long-overdue Maverick debut in a special program in memory of this master of American song (August 20). Maverick favorites the Bill Charlap Trio, known the world over for their innovative take on Jazz traditions, return to the Hall on September 3, and Jerome Jennings—Director of the Jazz orchestra at Juilliard, and one of the greatest drummers in Jazz today—returns to the Maverick leading his own ensemble in a grand finale of the Saturday series, in tribute to Duke Ellington (September 10).

Sunday afternoons of Classical music have been the foundation of the Maverick Concerts since the very first Festival in 1915, and that tradition continues—in particular, the Maverick's tradition of presenting the finest string quartets in the world in programs in which vital new works from a diverse range of American voices engage in conversation with repertoire from the great masters. The awesome string quartets of Joseph Haydn, who literally invented the genre in the 18th century, serve as the bedrock of this summer's unique programming.

July 10th sees the return of the Escher String Quartet, from the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center, in a montage of Haydn, Tchaikovsky and Russell Platt; and July 17 will mark the return by popular demand of Israeli pianist Daniel Gortler, in classics of Schubert and Grieg at the Maverick's Yamaha C7 grand piano, made possible by a generous gift from Yamaha Corporation of America.

July 24 brings the return from Paris of the distinguished Quatuor Danel, in a program especially suited for our times—Beethoven, and the two great quartet masters of Russian music: the Quartet No.13 of Dmitri Shostakovich, and the two string quartets based on Ukrainian themes by Tchaikovsky. And the very next Sunday sees the return of the hottest string quartet in America today, the Miro Quartet, in masterworks by Haydn, Ravel and Philip Glass, in tribute to his 85th birthday (July 31).

August 7 marks the return of one of North America’s finest piano trios, the Horszowski Trio, in favorites by Schumann and Mendelssohn, as well as two more recent gems by the young New York-based Chinese American composer Wang Jie; and August 21 will feature another Maverick perennial, the Borromeo String Quartet from Boston, in classics by Haydn, Beethoven, and the British-Jamaican contemporary star Eleanor Alberga.

Music Director Alexander Platt’s innovative flair for programming in which great canonic repertory is blended into contemporary realities, is in full force at the Maverick Concerts in August and September. On Sunday August 14, the Harlem String Quartet, joined by two of the finest African American classical artists today—pianist Terrence Wilson and flutist Brandon George—combine forces to pay tribute to some of the great “survivor” spirits of musical history: Duke Ellington, Joseph Haydn, and the Black composer William Grant-Still, whose music, 40 years after his death, is only beginning to receive its due. And on the Sunday afternoon of Labor Day weekend (September 4), the trend-setting Catalyst Quartet, famous for their celebrations of overlooked artists of color, combine with the brilliant young baritone Dashon Burton for Haydn’s “Sunrise” Quartet, Samuel Barber’s Dover Beach, and the newly discovered String Quartet in A Minor of Florence Price.

Surviving, as fate would have it, is also the theme of the annual Maverick Chamber Orchestra concert on Saturday night August 27, with Alexander Platt conducting the Caroga Arts Ensemble. Fresh from his concerto appearance with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Belarus emigre Yevgeny Kutik makes his Maverick debut in a special concerto version of the Dmitri Shostakovich 1968 Violin Sonata, as made famous in recent years by Gidon Kremer. Following the beloved Adagietto from Mahler’s Symphony No.5, the evening will close with the thrilling Concerto Grosso No.1 of the great Jewish-American composer of the early 20th century, Ernest Bloch.

Finally, just as the COVID crisis knocked out the long-planned 250th birthday celebrations of Ludwig van Beethoven, so have the convulsions of 2022 nearly obliterated any notice of the bicentennial of the birth of one of the very greatest composers of the 19th century: the Belgian organist and composer César Franck, who was one of the great musical voices of the golden age of Paris, until his untimely death in 1890. Three unique, bespoke programs will mark this milestone for one of the great composers of the Romantic era, whose Piano Quintet has long been a mainstay of the chamber music repertoire.

On Sunday August 28, another of the great Maverick “perennials,” the Amernet String Quartet from Miami, bring their fiery, old-world style to an afternoon celebrating Beethoven’s legacy in Paris, followed by two neglected masterworks of the French late-Romantic canon: the Quartet in D Major of Franck, and the totally obscure E Minor String Quartet of his famous rival, the composer of The Carnival of the Animals, Camille Saint-Saëns. And in the revival of an old Maverick tradition, the 6:30 pm Postlude concert, the KASA String Quartet and pianist Mei-Hsuan Huang will make their Maverick debuts in the world premiere of the Piano Quintet of Franck’s devoted disciple Ernest Chausson, as arranged by Alexander Platt for the occasion.

The ultimate musical monument to the spirit of César Franck will be erected on the final Maverick concert of the season on Sunday afternoon September 11, when the brilliant young Tashkent-born pianist Roman Rabinovich, now a resident of Canada, will make his Woodstock debut in a unique procession of the four masterworks of Franck for solo piano. Two of them, the Prelude, Fugue and Variation and the Prelude, Chorale and Fugue, have long been famous; but the afternoon, and Maverick’s 2022 season will close with what Alexander Platt has termed “the ultimate rarity”: the Sonata for Violin and Piano of César Franck—the most often-played violin sonata in the world—in its incredible transcription as a sonata solely for piano, by the legendary pianist Alfred Cortot.

The Maverick Concert Hall is located at 120 Maverick Road, Woodstock, NY. Reserved seating and general admission tickets for all concerts are available online at maverickconcerts.org. Maverick Family Concerts, Saturday afternoons on August 6, 13 and September 3 are free for ages 16 and under, and $5 for adults. Maverick’s traditional “Rock Bottom” section under the trees is by donation at the box office.

Maverick Concerts, the oldest continuous summer chamber music festival in America, is set amid the serene Catskill woodland just outside Woodstock, NY. Listed on the National Register of Historic Places, the uniquely charming rustic hall, with its superb acoustics, provides an ideal venue for an intimate encounter with chamber music. Maverick presents concerts by internationally renowned classical, jazz, and contemporary music ensembles from late June to early September. Maverick Concerts sustains the vision of its founder, Hervey White, who built the historic concert hall in 1916 and opened his land and hospitality to artists, musicians, and the community. Concerts are on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, with four Maverick Family Concerts on Saturday mornings.

The newest collaboration between the Main Street Community Center and the Windham Arts Alliance is an art show titled “The Light at the End of the Tunnel.” Each participating artist was asked to determine the meaning of this statement in relationship to their art. During the past 2½ years, people were constantly asking where and when will we see the light again. Many people have been fixated on the darkness around us and on the problems of our times. These moods are often reflected in artwork, music, and poetry. This exhibit is designed to provide a feeling of hope in the future. Carol Slutzky-Tenerowicz states, “At the beginning of the pandemic, tunnels were all I could envision when planning the subject for my next painting. Pulling from my repertoire of sketches and photos during that first pandemic summer, ten of the thirteen paintings I completed were ‘The Light at the End of the Tunnel’ subjects.”

During the pandemic, many people spent hours hiking or walking in the woods looking for a feeling of peace and hope, or just a way to spend the days feeling a closer connection with the world around them. Karen Rhodes reflects the theme of her painting by saying “In the woods the light is dark and filtered. As you walk into the orchard out of the woods the bright light hits you as almost white. Just as people coming out of a difficult time are almost blinded and disoriented.”

Carol Slutzky-Tenerowicz describes the beautiful places on the Mountaintop and how the tunnels created by the light influence her work. “Along the creeks and streams of the Mountaintop there are many beautiful places that are quiet and secluded. When looking upstream at the spaces, where boughs and leaves tilt over the water, they create an illusion of tunnels that look toward the light, creating a tunnel effect.” Athena Billias explains about composition when she says that she uses “tunnel composition to lead the eye around or to a point of interest.”

We can find light at the end of the tunnel in city scenes as well. On a recent trip to Boston, Sheila Trautman observed the light shining through a tunnel of buildings, bringing a sudden warmth and hope to the scene. She explains that “light can often become a quiet space in a busy painting.” On a bus ride into New York City through the Lincoln Tunnel, Sheila was struck by the sudden light on the buildings. She pondered about the lives of the people inside the buildings and views the light in the windows on the dark, foreboding buildings as a metaphor for optimism and improving opportunity in our lives. Karen Rhodes says, “The light strikes different objects at varying times. Just as it will take different people and countries varying times to come into the light.”

Michelle Moran gives us a feeling of real hope when she says, “It’s been a long, trying time lately and I know it’s not over. But things are moving in a positive direction. For me, days are hopeful and bright again. Summer is here and the time is right for dancing in the street!” Susan Kukle describes one of her paintings as evoking a time to play. To describe it, she writes a poem:
DEVIL’S KITCHEN BRIDGE

Out of the forest into the sun
the scene is set for playing.
Giant blocks on the other side.
What kind of water
runs thru the channel?

When you see the show, you will learn more about the miraculous survival of the Northern Coastal Redwoods from Marianne Tully’s watercolor, the survival that brought her to state: “There is still hope.” Two other artists, Mary King and Diane Sullivan, use adjectives such as hope, direction, peace, community, focus to describe their art and the road ahead during these tumultuous times. These are only a few of the ideas people are expressing about “The Light at the End of the Tunnel.” Join the Windham Arts Alliance and the Main Street Community Center to enjoy the art and develop your own interpretations of the theme.

We are excited to announce that ow in its 13th season, the Phoenicia International Festival of the Voice will once again present two major NYC companies, Teatro Grattacielo and legendary New York City Opera. Alongside these Big Apple giants, the Phoenicia Festival of the Voice will collaborate with the Woodstock Film Festival to present an amazing and innovative concert titled “Opera in the Movies,” with full chorus and orchestra, featuring vignettes of films that were enhanced by opera’s incredible drama and the world class soloists you’ve heard every year now for over a decade. The Shawshank Redemption, Philadelphia, Moonstruck and Fatal Attraction are just a few of the opera/movie combos that will be featured.

The hugely energetic and innovative Teatro Grattacielo will bring its special combination of great young singers, provocative staging and projections to open this season’s Festival on August 5. They will open with Mozart’s arguably greatest opera, Don Giovanni, updated as a celebration of Spanish kitsch set in 90s replete with air couches, Channel clothes, lots of jewels, a bright white stage made of tiles with bulls … and five bull sculptures made of neon. This production is a dedication to Spanish cinematographer Pedro Almodovar and Cuban Bolero singer La Lupe. The singers/actors, driven by their innermost desires and fears, live their lives in a continued state of suspension. A suspension of time. A suspension of senses. In a 90’s Spain, where food, sex and pop culture is a way of expression. The world’s greatest lover dressed and undressed in Armani—Mozart, high-fashion and infidelity—what a night it will be!

Following New York City Opera’s star-studded production of Rigoletto at the Phoenicia International Festival of the Voice last summer, they’ll be returning on Saturday, August 6, 2022 with another Verdi classic, La Traviata. Soprano Ekaterina Siurina and tenor Charles Castronovo will star along with Michael Chioldi, world-renowned baritone and star of last summer’s Rigoletto (a role he recently stepped into at the MET for a series of critically acclaimed performances), in what is sure to be another triumph in the Catskills with City Opera Music Director Maestro Constantine Orbelian at the helm. This storied company, which created so many stars in the past, will bring their own, classical touch to the production: a beautiful, Parisian courtesan finally finds true love only to have her life cut short by a fatal disease. New York City Opera has given us some of the great Violettas of our times—such as Beverly Sills, Diana Soviero and Ashley Putnam—and we are sure they will deliver yet another budding star in the role to capture our hearts and minds.

Celebrating its 20th anniversary, the painters, sculptors, collagists, ceramists, print makers, videographers and multimedia hosts of the Saugerties Artists Studio Tour are eager to embrace the opportunity to once again open their studios for art lovers who want to experience the place where art is made. This year many new-to-the-area artists have joined ranks with this ever-growing Saugerties artists’ community. All of the artists have been plying their skills to create new work, tinker with new techniques and mediums, and review past endeavors, finding new meaning in earlier explorations.

This year’s tour features 40 studios that are bracing (in a good way) for visitors, who will see completed work and works in progress in a wide array of mediums and styles. Whatever your interest, the tour has something for you—painters working in oils, acrylics, and inks, as well as with digital tools; collage makers and printmakers; photographers and video artists; sculptors working in polished steel or industrial debris, or making earth art, such as a bluestone creation to be enjoyed in the open air; ceramic artists whose work ranges from figurative to functional with a bit of funk thrown in for good measure and, enamel designs on silver and metal jewelry. Any and all materials can be transformed into artfully created pieces, such as handcrafted furniture and home furnishings made of vintage barn wood and high quality hardwoods. As well as weaving and spinning, a new category this year, featuring one-of-a-kind designs and original designs on silk.

On the tour’s website short videos introduce visitors to many of the artists in an up-close, personal way, telling their stories in their own words and offering demonstrations of how they do what they do best.

This is the tour’s 20th year of shining a light on local talent. It all kicks off with an opening reception on Friday, July 15, at the Dutch Barn Art & Heritage Gallery, 119 Main Street, Saugerties, from 5 to 7 pm, where you can pick up a map for this free self-guided tour. Gallery hours are July 16-July 31, Saturdays, 11 am to 5 pm, and Sundays, 1 pm to 5 pm.

Open studio days are Saturday and Sunday, August 13-14, from 10 am to 6 pm. Please check the website for more information about the Tour and its artists: saugertiesarttour.org. There is no charge to attend the opening reception and the open studio tour is a free event, registration is not required.

Fruition Chocolate Works
Garden is the New Place to Meet

Catkills-based Fruition Chocolate Works has updated its garden to include picnic tables, swinging benches, and a bike rack at its recently expanded chocolate factory to encourage its team and customers to enjoy the outdoors—iced mocha or ice cream sandwich in hand. This small-batch chocolate company is helmed by renowned chocolate-maker Bryan Graham and his wife, Dahlia, now-CEO, who both grew up in the area and have set down their roots to stay.

When COVID hit back in March, 2020, Bryan and Dahlia acted quickly to keep their team safe. They promptly closed their retail boutique in the town of Woodstock, pivoted their Shokan operation to curbside and mail order only, and reduced staff by roughly 75%. In June that same year, after having secured a Paycheck Protection Program loan and a Small Business Administration Economic Injury Development loan, Fruition felt ready to rebuild its team and launched a long-time dream of offering soft serve ice cream made onsite. With the surge of visitors to the area, and the Ashokan Rail Trail passing right behind the locale, the ice cream took off and the buzz started to spread. In fall, Fruition featured hot chocolate, espresso drinks, pans of brownies, and chocolate chip cookies. The core products including best-selling Brown Butter Bourbon Caramels and Award-Winning Chocolate Bar Tasting Sets are still available, as well as a newly expanded selection of curated pantry goods including local items such as Westwind Orchard syrup, jam, and honey and ImmuneSchein ginger elixirs.

Now Fruition is feeling the effects of the rising costs of inflation, yet remains hopeful with the re-emerging opportunities to engage with customers again at trade shows and events such as the recent Field & Supply at the Hutton Brickyards, and upcoming wholesale shows including the Good Food Mercantile and Fancy Food Show in NYC. Dahlia Graham says, “The pandemic forced us to think on our feet. We have rebuilt our team, and refocused our strategy, and now have the desire to show everyone that we’re still here, and in many ways stronger than before.”

About Fruition Chocolate Works
Fruition is one of only a handful of chocolatiers in the United States producing all of their chocolate directly from the cocoa bean. Fruition Chocolate Works prides itself on not just making chocolates, but creating bean-to-bar chocolate, which is a multi-step process. The first, and arguably most valuable step, is sourcing, which Fruition does transparently through industry pioneers such as Uncommon Cacao. Fruition makes its chocolate from organically grown, ethically-sourced cacao, where farmers are paid well above market prices. It then roasts, cracks, winnows, refines, conches, tempers, and moulds in small batches to highlight the inherent flavors of the cacao. Dessert Professional Magazine has recognized Bryan Graham as one of the Top 10 Chocolatiers in North America, and the company has appeared in the pages of Food & Wine, Bon Appétit, and The New York Times among others. In 2016, Fruition was awarded Best in Competition at the International Chocolate Awards World Final. To date Fruition has garnered over 73 awards, and is well regarded by chocolate experts and industry peers alike. Co-Founder and CEO, Dahlia Graham, was recently elected to join the board of the Fine Chocolate Industry Association.

Fruition Chocolate Works is open daily from 9 am to 5 pm at 3091 State Route 28 in Shokan, NY. Customers can shop onsite or order online for nationwide shipping at fruitionchocolateworks.com.

JULY EXPLORATION DAY AT HANFORD MILLS MUSEUM: RHYTHM, SOUND AND MUSIC

The 2022 Exploration Days at Hanford Mills are designed to give visitors a chance to explore the mill and experience a variety of engaging activities and programs offered by local presenters and museum staff at Hanford Mills.

The July 16 Exploration Day will be titled Rhythm and Music at the Mill. Performers include the duo of Tim Iversen and Will Walker, known as Thumbs and the Professor, as well as Katie Boardman.

Thumbs and the Professor with Iversen and Walker are a songwriters duo playing a wide range of blues, traditional, and original tunes on a variety of instruments.

Katie Boardman will help visitors explore the ways that we use wood to make music on mandolin, guitar, hammer dulcimer, and percussion instruments. Katie has performed traditional, historic, and young people’s music around New York State for many years, appearing at museums, historic sites, and community venues. She especially enjoys inviting listeners to participate in making music.

Bernd Krause, a luthier of over 40 years, will have his instruments on display. Krause began building mountain dulcimers in 1978, and he also builds guitars, ukuleles, mandolins and kalimbas. He attended the School of Research and Design in 1981, and he is a member of the Guild of American Luthiers. In addition to making instruments, he also offers workshops in dulcimer building and the history of the Mountain Dulcimer for festivals, schools and historical societies.

In addition, our July 16 mill tours will focus on the sounds and rhythms that you can hear as we operate the waterwheel and other woodworking machinery from the milling era.

The young people of Catskill Clubhouse have announced MoveFest on Main, the first annual movement festival that highlights dance and its many forms. On July 2, from 11 am to 5 pm at 455 Main Street, the Catskill community can engage in a sampling of different dance forms—free for every body—including Movement Meditation, Salsa, Yoga, Hip-hop, Locking, Fusion Belly Dancing, Qi Gong, Ballet, Alexander Technique, Earth Sounding and more. Local and regional practitioners will share open sessions with the public—no experience necessary.

“This is an opportunity for the public to come out, connect, and celebrate,” says movement artist Kris Seto of Prattsville, NY, who received a community grant from CREATE Council for the Arts to co-create the event. “Movement is such a powerful tool to find ways to ground, explore, and express ourselves. Our bodies hold so much—and if we imagine our bodies as sites of change, how can new ways of moving unlock new possibilities?”

As part of MoveFest on Main—and leading up to Saturday’s showcase—the young people of Clubhouse will be training with three New York City artists who have been on Broadway, toured the country, danced with celebrity artists (Alicia Keys, Janet Jackson, Madonna) and have received world titles and New York Foundation for the Arts grants. Over the course of the five days, they’ll learn from: Alain “Hurrikane” Lauture, an award-winning Locker and freestyler; Miki Michelle, a multifaceted performance artist; and Jayson P. Smith, an interdisciplinary artist and writer. The young people’s time with these artists will culminate in a showcase performance to share what they’ve learned.

“MoveFest is important because you don’t always need words to move people—actions speak louder than words,” says Grayson, a Catskill resident and peer leader at Clubhouse who has helped craft the vision for the event.

“MoveFest is important because learning how to better understand your body and how it moves is a good way to manage self love!” added Nyx, another young person and peer leader at Clubhouse.

“When we sat down to plan this event, we talked a lot about what we want the public to come away with,” says Clubhouse staff member Faith Grumberg-Otey, “And that included words and phrases like: ‘captivated, rejuvenated, confident.’ We want people to enjoy themselves and feel seen—beyond our surface appearances.”

“This is ultimately a container for joy and discovery—for people to learn new skills and see what we are capable of,” adds Grayson. “The Clubhouse unites so many different people under one giant rainbow—we are diverse in ethnicity, language, background, perspectives. We have so much to share and we want to bring our accepting culture to the greater community.”

Welcome to Tales for Catskill Kids where each month we go back in time to explore our region and the creatures—some real, some imaginary—who have roamed the continent for millions of years. How many millions? Well, according to the U.S. National Science Foundation the oldest mammal fossil in North America is 21,000,000-year-old monkey tooth. Though the monkey never swung in the branches of our ancient forests, the first proof of mammals in our neck of the woods was found by a Dutch farmer in 1705—a 4.75 lb. mastodon tooth! Mastodons lived in our region as recently as 10,000 years ago. Imagine the surprise when a new species arrived—the spear-hurling, meat-eating Homo sapiens! And with their arrival, some might have noticed something unusual, something in the distance that flickered and rose toward the sky. These two-legged creatures had tamed fire. They used it by day to dry and is cook their food and by night to keep warm and to ward off predators.

These days, fire has lost some of its ancient magic over. However, in summer, when we gather around the crackling flames of a campfire, fire regains some of its power as we tell stories.

Ghost stories.

And here in the Catskill region, we have countless ghost stories. Why? Because we have countless ghosts!

Just ask Kathryn Matthews, a New York Times journalist, who interviewed the owners of some very haunted houses in nearby Columbia County. Take the case of a spooky mansion in Kinderhook owned by Mr. John Knott, whose weekend guests were being tormented by his resident ghost. One was so terrified that “her screams—described by Mr. Knott as bloodcurdling” awoke everyone in the house who ran to her room. She took off the next morning like a bat out of hell, never to return. Then one night at 3 am, while Mr. Knott was reading in bed, the sound of heavy breathing came through the ceiling and grew louder and louder as it filled the room. According to Matthews, “The heavy breather hasn’t reappeared, but if he does, Mr. Knott is prepared to treat him with respect.”

And who hasn’t heard of the Headless Horseman? His habit of night riding and terrorizing the locals, dates back to the Dullahan, the dark rider of ancient Ireland whose horse’s hoof-beats were a sure sign of death to some unlucky passer-by. In our Catskill version, recounted by Washington Irving in The Legend of Sleepy Hollow, the horseman is a phantom soldier whose head was blown off by a cannonball in battle, who every night rises from his grave to search the countryside for his skull. In the tale, one summer night, he chased down the schoolmaster;
Ichabod Crane, who according to some locals was “spirited away by supernatural means.” (1819)

Was the Headless Horseman real? Of course not. We all know that—but how about the restless spirit of Ichabod Crane who may still be haunting the old farmhouse in Kinderhook?

In 1809 Washington Irving visited the upstate town of Kinderhook where he met the schoolmaster, Jesse Merwin. Often the two young men fished on the lake behind the Merwin house where they no doubt swapped a few tales. In later life, Jesse would become well-known as a powerful public speaker who could tell a convincing story. And in his youth, he might easily have bowled over Irving, a newcomer to these mountains, with the local lore—including a tale of a headless phantom and the schoolmaster he terrorized. Many townspeople still believe that Jesse Merwin and Ichabod Crane were one in the same—as proclaimed by the sign posted by New York State Department of Education outside Jesse's old house that reads: Merwin Farmhouse Where Ichabod Crane Lived. What makes them all so sure? Back in 1851 the great American author, Washington Irving confirmed it himself. In a long letter to his aging friend, he identified Jesse as the originator of Ichabod Crane. (Biggs, 2002)

When Jesse died the next year in 1852, he was laid to rest in a nearby cemetery. Both his grave and that of his wife were marked with simple marble stones. Years later their family decided to build a bigger monument in their memory—and dug up the markers and took them back to the Merwin house. One was placed at the steps to the back porch, and the other, Jesse's gravestone, was set into the ground leading to the front door.

Fast forward to 1949, nearly a hundred years after Jesse had moved on to the next realm, when a New York City actress, Esther Lemming Tuttle and her husband Ben bought the old Merwin house. At that time, they were warned that if they ever moved the tombstones, the Headless Horseman would ride again.

Over the years, Mrs. Tuttle never saw anything supernatural in her lovely little Dutch farmhouse, however, her son did. In an interview for the Knickerbocker News in

The Headless Horseman Pursuing Ichabod Crane (1858), oil on canvas by John Quidor. Smithsonian American Art Museum, museum purchase made possible in part by the Catherine Walden Myer Endowment, the Julia D. Strong Endowment, and the Director’s Discretionary Fund.

WE'VE HAD A BEAR SIGHTING!

6042 MAIN STREET
TANNERSVILLE NY 12485
1977, she reported that one day while driving, she and her husband were talking about the back porch. Her son, then a toddler, removed his thumb from his mouth and said, “I don’t like the porch. I don’t like the white mommy, she wouldn’t sing a song.”

As further recounted by photojournalist H. A. von Behr in his nonfiction book Ghosts in Residence, “The Tuttles were mystified. But later they began to hear tales of a descendant of Merwin, a lovely young girl named Nellie.” Sadly, the girl was very ill and “she slept out on the porch for fresh air. And she died on the porch…. Some say she comes back now and then for a visit.” (1984)

In a 2002 article, Mrs. Tuttle fessed up to moving Jesse Merwin’s gravestone when she asked a local handyman to pry up the stone so she could see its inscription. Sure enough, when he did, she saw Jesse’s name carved into the marble slab and had it replaced in the ground.

So far, no Headless Horseman galloped from the grave and across her lawn.

But that night, Mrs. Tuttle, her husband and their kids drove down to New York City, leaving her mother-in-law in the house alone. In the front yard, there were two solid maple trees. Imagine grandma’s terror when thunder rumbled and a lightning bolt blast one of the trees in two. Mrs. Tuttle told the reporter that her mother-in-law “couldn’t touch anything inside the house. The lightning bolt had electrified everything.”

However, according to von Behr, in terms of supernatural visitations, the family was out of the woods. “As far as they know, the Tuttles have not been visited by the Merwins or by the Headless Horseman for many years. But the couple will not raise the tombstone of Merwin or his wife again.” (1986)

Calling All Ghosts!

So far, my research has yielded plenty of verifiable ghost stories—although I can’t verify the ghosts, I can verify the stories as told by multiple witnesses and documented in numerous sources. Now I’m reaching out to you, my readers. Do you have a Catskill ghost story to tell? Maybe you have a friendly ghost rattling around your attic—but please be sure to double check to see that it’s not a bunch of squirrels knocking around their nuts. If it’s not a story you know first-hand, ask around. Neighbors, parents, grandparents might have a tale or two to share.

You can send your chilling tales of local hauntings to: info@catskillkids.com

Coreopsis are one of the easiest flowers to grow, and come in a wide variety of colors and growth habits. Fans of native plants will be happy to know that some 45 coreopsis species are native to North America. Several showy coreopsis that are native to New York State include threadleaf coreopsis (Coreopsis verticillata), lanceleaf coreopsis (C. lanceolata), and large-flower coreopsis (C. grandiflora). Don’t hold it against this lovely flower that one of its common names is “tickseed.” It got the name because people thought its round seeds looked like ticks, not because it harbors them.

Coreopsis flowers attract butterflies and hummingbirds, and the seeds are appreciated by goldfinches, sparrows, chickadees, cardinals and other seed-eating birds. Deer typically do not browse on coreopsis, so carefree humans can enjoy the flowers throughout their long blooming season, from spring through midsummer.

Threadleaf, lanceleaf and large-flower coreopsis are all sun-loving perennials which are drought-tolerant and will not only grow in poor soil, but flower best when given minimal fertilizer or none at all. Threadleaf coreopsis spreads through underground rhizomes, growing into neat clumps. Lanceleaf and large-flower coreopsis will seed themselves freely, spreading into colonies; gardeners who want to keep them contained may need to pull stray seedlings—but they are not hard to pull.

Because of its beauty and variety, coreopsis has given plant breeders a lot to work with. Its range of colors has expanded into bronze, pink, purple and white. Moonbeam is a low-growing cultivar of C. verticillata with abundant, pale yellow flowers. Sunburst is a three-foot-tall cultivar of C. lanceolata with semi-double yellow flowers. Red Satin is an intensely red hybrid whose blooms are carried on 15- to 18-inch stems.

Bicolors have petals that may be bronze or purple at the center with white, yellow or cream tips. Foot-tall Golden Stardust has flowers with deep bronze centers with bright yellow tips; it carries them on foot-high stems. Sweet Dreams, a two-foot tall cultivar of C. rosea, has pinkish-white petals with dark raspberry centers. Sunfire has flowers 2 inches across that are bright tangerine with burgundy centers, carried on 16- to 20-inch stems.

Coreopsis is easily grown from seed, but some of the newer varieties may only be available in pots. Planted in full sun, in just about any soil that doesn’t get waterlogged, it will add cheerful color to a garden regardless of whether it is carefully tended, often neglected, or anything in between.

For me, July is a time when I really get to enjoy the great outdoors of the Catskills. The mountains are a deep green, temperatures are warm and those annoying black flies have started to disappear! Not only that, it is just a great time to be outside in the Catskills, whether you are grilling with some friends in your backyard, attending an outdoor concert, or taking in an amazing mountaintop vista on a trail you’ve been hiking all day.

It is also a good time to take stock of how lucky we are to be able to live in or visit a place like the Catskills. We have hundreds of thousands of acres of protected Forever Wild lands in the Catskill Park and beyond, that preserve and protect the natural beauty and wildness of the region. Within and around those protected lands are our Catskill communities, offering visitors and residents alike a beautiful, yet sustainable place for us to enjoy for generations to come. It is through the hard work of all of us who love the Catskills, that we have our Catskills of today and that we can protect them for future generations to come.

Catskill Center’s Stewards Program Expands For the 2022 Season

For the 2022 summer season at the Catskill Park, the Catskill Center is putting Catskill Stewards in certain high-use areas, along with one steward who will serve as a ridge runner.

The ridge runner will start the season stewarding on and near the Devil’s Path trail in Greene County, one of the Catskill’s more challenging hikes, and cover other trails as needed. Another steward will work part-time at Platte Cove while the remaining six stewards will be divided between Peekamoose Blue Hole and Kaaterskill Clove, providing coverage every day.

“In light of the increasing number of visitors, the Catskill Center is proud to be able to place stewards in areas across the Catskill Park. With seven-day-a-week coverage at both the Peekamoose Blue Hole and Kaaterskill Falls, along with a new roving Ridge Runner position who will greet visitors on the trails of the Park, our stewards will be greeting thousands, if not tens of thousands of visitors a week,” says Jeff Senterman, Executive Director of the Catskill Center. “The Catskill Center’s stewards are key to welcoming visitors to the Catskill Park, introducing them to the resources of the Catskill Visitor Center, and offering them advice on how to recreate responsibly in the Park to ensure protection of our natural resources.”

The stewards are a vital link between these locations and visitors. The Catskill Stewards Program operates in partnership with the NYSDEC at the Peekamoose Blue Hole and Kaaterskill Falls. In Platte Clove, the program runs on the Catskill Center’s Platte Clove Preserve. Since its inception in 2018, the Catskill Stewards Program has educated and welcomed 226,073 visitors to the Catskill Forest Preserve.

Stewards explain and demonstrate why responsible recreation is important—from the importance of not littering to staying on the trails. While each location has its specific needs, the common thread is natural resource protection, public awareness, and education. Without the stewards, the Catskills’ forever wild spaces are consistently in danger of being trampled or otherwise damaged because of the increasing number of visitors. Stewards help interpret the Catskill Park, provide information on alternative areas to visit, and offer directions to local businesses, which, in turn, helps the local economy.

Stewards are seasonal employees of the Catskill Center, who are trained specifically to work with the public at high use areas across the Park utilizing principles from Leave No Trace, Recreate Responsibly, and other outdoor programs.
To learn more about the Catskill Center’s Catskill Stewards Program, go to catskill-center.org/catskillstewardsprogram. And to check in on the stewards’ work, follow us on our social media platforms.

The Catskill Stewards Program is made possible by the generous support of the NYS-DEC, REI Co-op, the Rondout Neversink Stream Program, Bruderhof Community at Platte Cove, Catskill Mountain Club, Hunter Foundation, and the generous supporters of the Catskill Center.

Visit the Catskill Park’s Visitor Center
Located at 5096 Route 28 in Mount Tremper, NY, the Congressman Maurice D. Hinchey Catskills Visitor Center (CVC) is the official visitor center for the Catskill Park. Operated and managed by the Catskill Center, staff are available at the CVC with information, maps and all the advice needed to plan a Catskill adventure. A walk-up service window at the building is now every day except for Wednesdays, from 10am to 3pm. Visitors who wear a mask and follow social distancing protocols can get their Catskill questions answered in person, receive tourism literature and make purchases at the CVC’s shop. The CVC building, including the restrooms inside, are not yet open to the public, but a port-a-john is available in the parking area.

In addition to tourism services, there are 1.5 miles of trails on the CVC’s grounds, including the 0.5 mile ADA accessible Interpretive Loop Trail, which are open to the public daily. The 80-foot tall Upper Esopus Fire Tower is also open daily to visitors, offering unrivaled views of the surrounding mountains and Esopus Creek Valley. Picnic tables are available on site for those who wish to enjoy a picnic lunch.

CVC staff are also available to answer questions about the Catskills and the Catskill Park via email at info@catskillcenter.org or phone 845 688 3369.

Catskill Park Advisory Committee
The Catskill Park Advisory Committee (CPAC) was established to facilitate communication within the Park. It consists of representatives from local governments and organizations, chaired by the Catskill Center, and provides a forum for communities, user groups and stakeholders of the Catskill Park and the Catskill Watershed to discuss issues of regional importance. The purpose of the Committee is to provide assistance, advice and guidance to the DEC, the New York City Department of Environmental Protection and other land managers in the management of the New York State Forest Preserve, the Catskill Park and the Catskill Watershed.

Meetings are held quarterly and are open to the public. If you’d like to learn more, join the mailing list or attend the next meeting, please contact the Catskill Center at 845 586 2611 or e-mail them at cccd@catskillcenter.org with CPAC in the subject asking to be added to the mailing list. For the time being CPAC meetings will be held virtually. You must be on the mailing list to receive the email to register for the virtual meeting.

Catskill Park Updates Now Available Online
Local recreational opportunities are always changing and by visiting the Catskills Visitor Center’s Trail Conditions page you can now see updates related to the Catskill Park.

#RecreateResponsibly in the Catskills
The #RecreateResponsibly guidelines give some sound advice on how to get outdoors right now. When you choose to recreate responsibly, you are doing your part to keep yourself and others safe and healthy.

Know Before you Go:
Check the status of the place you want to visit. If it is closed, don’t go. If it’s crowded, have a plan B.

Plan Ahead:
Prepare for facilities to be closed, pack lunch and bring essentials like hand sanitizer and a mask.

Stay Close to Home:
This is not the time to travel long distances to recreate. Most places are only open for day use.

Practice Physical Distancing:
Adventure only with your immediate household. Be prepared to cover your nose and mouth and give others space.

If you are sick, stay home.

Play It Safe:
Slow down and choose lower-risk activities to reduce your risk of injury.

Search and rescue operations and health care resources are both strained.

Leave No Trace:
Respect public lands and communities and take your garbage with you, including disposable gloves and masks.

We all have a shared responsibility to care for these places and ensure they remain for future generations to enjoy. Lead by example and join the Catskill Center and the Catskills Visitor Center in learning how to #RecreateResponsibly at recreateresponsibly.org.

In its second year of producing, the newly established Catskill Mountain Shakespeare announces their 2022 main stage show, A Midsummer Night’s Dream, to be presented from July 16 through July 31, 2022. A Midsummer Night’s Dream is an intricate story of love, performance, mistaken identity, colliding worlds and magic and will be presented outdoors and under an expansive tent at The Emerson Resort & Spa. A diverse and gender blind cast will perform in an immersive setting against the picturesque landscape of the Catskill mountains and the Esopus Creek. The production will feature 11 classically trained actors (a combination of New York City and Hudson Valley based talents), a creative crew of costume, set, music and lighting designers, and directed by Peter Andersen, an MFA directing candidate at Carnegie Mellon University and a graduate of Emerson College (BFA Acting). “After an incredible first season last year, we are thrilled to be back,” says Artistic Director and Founder Sarah Reny. “Summer theater out on the grass and under our tent, what’s better than that!”

Inspired by the majesty of the mountains, CMS aspires to create a theatrical experience for the growing and picturesque Hudson Valley region, offering a complete visual experience. Catskill Mountain Shakespeare explores classic texts (and new work initiatives) and makes these stories accessible, thought-provoking and entertaining for a modern audience. Fostering diversity, inclusion and equity for all artists, creators and audience members is a top priority. CMS has garnered wide support from patrons, business owners and investors and performs at existing locations that provide infrastructure, accessibility and a beautiful landscape. CMS believes outdoor summer theater is an inviting way for the local community, and anyone visiting the area, to enjoy live art together.
