June 2019 • GUIDE 3
ARTS LEADER

By Robert Tomlinson

In July, 2018, Marline A. Martin began her tenure as the new executive director of the Greene County Council on the Arts (GCCA). She succeeds Kay Stamer, the founding executive director of GCCA since 1982.

Ms. Martin has held leadership position or affiliations with some of New York’s leading arts and cultural organizations, including Mind Builders Creative Arts Center, The Children’s Art Carnival, TRANSART and Cultural Services, Urban Dance Collective, the Caribbean Cultural Center, and While We Are Still Here.

For the past seven years, Ms. Martin has served as the executive director of the LeRoy Nieman Art center in Harlem. She holds a Master of Fine Arts degree from the City College of New York, a graduate certificate in Arts Management from Columbia University and a graduate diploma in International Law and Relations from the University of West Indies. She is also an artist, curator, writer, and storyteller.

Visit greenearts.org for more information about GCCA/CREATE and its programs.

I believe that creativity is a renewable resource that can break down barriers and build connectivity on which communities grow their economy, fostering relationships that build social networks and generate culture. My vision for CREATE (GCCA’s new name) is to build a progressive regional arts council that is a continuum of engagement, activities and experiences where we value culture and respect diversity. What is important is the desire to build strong artistic and culturally vibrant communities and CREATE becomes the catalyst for growing and strengthening our cultural assets.

Maverick Concerts, the oldest continuous summer chamber music festival in America, is pleased to announce its 2019 season opens the weekend of June 29-30, 2019. Tickets are on sale now for Maverick’s 104th Festival, which runs through September 1 in its iconic, award-winning Maverick Concert Hall. Built by hand in 1916 by founder Hervey White and applauded as a multi-starred attraction by the National Register of Historic Places, this lovely “music chapel in the woods” is renowned for its superb acoustics.

The 17th year of Music Director Alexander Platt’s stunningly successful programming continues its customary tradition, presenting cherished classical works from the past to the finest in new compositions performed by internationally renowned artists. “Come revel with us this summer in the spirit of the 60s as we present beloved classics ‘in conversation’ with modern works—the amazing quartets of Elliot Carter, Dmitri Shostakovich and Philip Glass; Happy Traum’s all-star celebration of the centennial of the birth of Pete Seeger, Steve Gorn and friends paying tribute to the spirit of Ravi Shankar, and more,” said Platt. “Our Jazz at the Maverick series debuts one of the most royal among young lions of jazz—Christian Sands, and welcomes the return of Nilson Matta, Bill Charlap and Karl Berger. Along with our splendid Young Mavericks Festival, I know that our 104th festival will be one for us all to cherish!”

June’s warmth brings butterflies into our Greene County gardens. Some, like the monarch and the American lady, have migrated north from places where winter is not as cold; others winter here under cover and emerge in spring.

Great spangled fritillaries lay their eggs near violets in late summer. When the caterpillars hatch, they nestle deep into leaf litter to overwinter in a hibernation-like state called diapause. In spring when the violets unfurl their leaves, the caterpillars come out to eat. In June they close themselves into chrysalises under rocks or bark for two or three weeks before emerging in all their glory. Letting areas of leaf-litter stay undisturbed in your garden through winter can help these butterflies survive.

One of the longest lived butterflies, the mourning cloak, overwinters as a winged adult, crawling into cracks in stones or crevices in tree bark and going into diapause to survive. It emerges in spring to feed on tree sap and overripe fruit, and lays its eggs on the twigs of willow, paper birch, hackberry and other trees. It can live as long as ten or eleven months.

Black swallowtails can overwinter in chrysalis form. The caterpillars, with their alternating stripes of green and yellow-spotted black, feed on Queen Anne’s lace and garden herbs like parsley, fennel and dill, not usually in large enough numbers to harm crops. The black swallowtail is native to North America, but the cabbage white was introduced by accident from Europe in the nineteenth century. The cabbage white lays its eggs on plants in the cabbage family, where its voracious green caterpillars can ravage crops. Natural controls include birds, tachinid flies and ladybird larvae.

To attract more butterflies into your garden, it’s important to avoid pesticides. If you buy milkweed plants to support monarchs, check first to make sure they are pesticide-free and won’t kill the caterpillars. Some gardeners spray BT (Bacillus thuringiensis) to protect their vegetable crops. Although harmless to humans and pets, BT is lethal to caterpillars—including the caterpillars of butterflies you may want to welcome into your yard. Planting herbs in the vegetable garden can help keep pests from getting out of hand without killing native caterpillars, perhaps because strongly scented herbs mask the scents of plants the butterflies seek out for laying eggs.

Flowers that will attract butterflies to your yard include zinnias, purple coneflowers, bergamot, asters, and marigolds. Milkweed is important for monarchs, but many other butterflies also appreciate its sweetly scented flowers. The northern spicebush, a shrub with yellow flower clusters in early spring which is native to New York State, has lent its name to the spicebush swallowtail, which prefers it as a host plant. Letting violets mingle with the grass in your lawn will create habitat for the great spangled fritillary.

Once you start attracting butterflies, you may get hooked. One of the few things more beautiful than a garden full of blooming flowers is a garden full of butterflies visiting those flowers!
Located just off of Route 28, close to the almost literal heart of the Catskill Mountains, Phoenicia is exactly what you would expect from a charming Catskill Mountain village: nestled at the gateway of the Catskill Forest Preserve, at the junction of the Stony Clove and Esopus creeks, it’s the perfect base camp for your Catskill Mountain adventure. Just minutes from great hikes, paddles, swimming holes, ski resorts and more, its central location makes it totally convenient for a day or weekend trip (or longer!). If it's the arts you seek, you'll find them in abundance in Phoenicia: there's theater, music, dance and much more either within the village itself or within an easy drive. And it has all the amenities so you can still have it all while getting away from it all: shops, restaurants, and lots of lodging options.

Phoenicia has it all, but ask the residents what makes their town so special, and they'll say it's the people. Dave Pillard of The Tenderland Home on Main Street says that "everyone feels comfortable in Phoenicia. It's a very laid back and welcoming community. It's the perfect place to 'be yourself!'"

This August—as every August for the past decade—the hills of the northeast Catskills will be alive with the sound of the most powerful musical instrument there is, the human voice in performance.

Mark your calendars for the weekend of Friday, August 2 through Sunday, August 4 and head for the charming hamlet of Phoenicia to revel in the Phoenicia International Festival of the Voice: concerts, recitals, plays, and presentations that showcase and celebrate the boundless diversity and matchless capabilities of the voice—brought to you by international stars and home-grown talent offering opera, jazz, rock, gospel, and everything in between—from morning till night.

How It Started
The little-festival-that-could began ten years ago when a group of Phoenicia residents got together to figure out a way to raise some money for much needed playground equipment for the tiny municipality’s kids. Two of those local residents just happened to be world-renowned opera singers (as well as husband and wife): mezzo-soprano Maria Todaro, a Rossini specialist, and baritone Louis Otey, a veteran of pretty much all of the world’s major opera houses in a career spanning 30 years, five continents, and more than 20 countries.

So the idea of an outdoor concert of opera arias in Phoenicia’s Parish Park was born, and when, despite a daylong rain, more than 500 people brought their blankets and folding chairs to the Park to hear Opera Under the Stars, the little hamlet thundered with the cries of “Encore!” well into the night.

And “Encore!” it was—August after August for the succeeding ten years, transforming the little hamlet into a global flashpoint of celebration for everything of, by, and about the voice as the Festival annually carried out its mission, as defined by General Director Maria Todaro: “to elevate the human spirit and enhance community through the power of the voice in music.”

African-American Focus
In its tenth anniversary season, the Festival’s theme is a celebration of the African-American contribution to the voice in music—through a performance of excerpts from Scott Joplin’s opera, Treemonisha, through a concert of music of the abolition movement by the a capella gospel-plus group, Lady Parts, through a special presentation on music of the African Diaspora with Justin Kolb on piano and Carey Harrison reciting poetry and stories, and with a focus on African-American singers, musicians, creators, and actors.

In addition, the Festival reprises highlights from its first ten years in the opening-night gala concert featuring favorite stars singing favorite selections, with a Saturday-night performance of a classic opera favorite, the enchanting L’Elisir D’Amore, with audience workshops and latte lectures, and with an emphasis on showcasing homegrown talent. In fact, that’s who will dominate the final gala concert in music ranging from classical to jazz, from Broadway to rock. After that, the audience is invited to dance the night away at our wrap-up Dance Party.

While spring is generally slow to come to the Catskills, June is the time when the mountains truly shake off their winter and early spring grays and the deep greens blanket the mountains. It’s a time of wildflowers and warmer temperatures, along with a few black flies! It’s also a great time to start getting out and enjoying the great outdoors, especially in the Catskills.

There are many events and activities occurring throughout the Catskills including festivals, trail openings, birding conferences, volunteer opportunities and more! There’s no shortage of ways for you to have a good time and get involved in the great outdoors!

Hiking and Knowing the Catskills

I’ve been hiking a lot over the past year. Of course, much of my exploring has been in the Catskills, including my completion of the Catskill 3500 peaks earlier in 2019. In part, I have my husband, a thru-hiker of the Appalachian Trail and overall outdoor lover and guide, to thank for being my constant cheerleader and inspiring me to get outside. The other reason being that I wanted to see the Catskills and really know them. Having grown up hiking in the region, I found myself often relying on my recollection of an area when having conversations with stakeholders instead of more recently knowing the place intimately. A year of hiking on more than 460 miles of trail (and bushwhacks) has strengthened in me a sense of place and a reconnection to the glory that is our Catskill Mountains.

The Catskill Mountains were the first mountains I grew up scrambling around, cutting my teeth and exploring with my dad. Next, he and I took to the Adirondacks which would eventually prepare me for when I left for college in New England: where the mountains are bigger, summits rise above treeline and there is a knife edge in Maine so narrow that my knees were left shaking at the top—amazing, breathtaking, and challenging. My time spent out West to see the Sierras, the Cascades and many more can also be perfectly described by any adjective of wonder.

However, no matter in what beautiful place I found myself, I was always happy to come home to the Catskills throughout those two decades away from them. Even if I was just back for a weekend, it was energizing and refreshing—special in a way that no other place could be. When asked what my favorite place was, I’d always respond with “The Catskills.” Once you experience the Catskills, they infuse into your bones, becoming a part of you and leaving them unforgettable.

When I decided to lace up my hiking boots and explore the Catskills once again, it wasn’t for the physical challenge or to check peaks off a list (and definitely not for the bugs and wet weather we had last year), but it was to reconnect with the mountains that first defined me and have always held a very special place in my heart. That I could do all that again with someone I love was even better. After 21 years, we found new ways to bond: over grueling 19 mile hikes through mud and nettles, fueling our hiker hunger at a Chinese buffet, or just getting ourselves back home, sitting on our porch and treasuring the fact that we live in one of the most extraordinary places around.

What did I learn after all those peaks, those trail miles and miles of relatively untouched wilderness we bushwhacked through? The Catskill Mountains are extraordinary and there is magic in these mountains. All this effort reinforced my strong belief that the Catskills are worth protecting and that our efforts to protect them are working, as we have tens of thousands of acres of wilderness just hours from one of the greatest metropolitan regions in United States. The greatest lesson? The Catskills inspire. They inspire awe, reverence and create a sense of place deep in your being that makes you realize you are right where you belong.

That’s why I am honored to be able to serve the Catskills in my role as Executive Director of the Catskill Center and so fully believe in the work of the Center. We must all continue to work together to preserve and protect these amazing mountains, our communities, our forests and our streams.

Outdoors Day
New York State will be celebrating Outdoors Day on Saturday, June 8. The NYS
Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) is hosting these events as part of the Governor's Adventure NY Initiative to connect people to nature and provide increased access to the outdoors so that New Yorkers of all ages and abilities can experience a wide range of hands-on recreational activities.

New York State DEC Commissioner Seggos said, “With nearly five million acres of land open to the public to explore, New Yorkers have endless opportunities for outdoor adventure. DEC is excited to host Outdoors Day events on June 8 and open up new possibilities for outdoor recreation for people of all ages. We encourage you to spend the day with us enjoying the outdoors and trying a new skill.”

New York’s Outdoors Day coincides with National Get Outdoors Day, an annual event to encourage healthy, active outdoor fun. The events are also consistent with the Governor’s 2018 Executive Order to make New York the first age-friendly state in the country.

At events across the state, Outdoors Day participants will be able to discover new skills and try out a range of introductory outdoor recreation activities such as fishing, paddling, hiking, biking, bird watching, archery, camping, and more. Adaptive equipment and opportunities will be available at select locations.

The Catskill Center and the Catskills Visitor Center are celebrating National Get Outdoors Day at the Catskills Visitor Center with the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC). Catskill Center staff, DEC staff, local non-profits and outdoor recreation experts will be on hand to share demos and hands-on activities geared especially for beginning explorers. From fly fishing and birdwatching to hiking and animal tracking—something for all interests and ages! The event is free, but some activities will be limited to a certain number of participants and require pre-registration: learn more at www.catskillsvisitorcenter.org.

Jeff Senterman, Executive Director of The Catskill Center, said, “It is vitally important to help New Yorkers enjoy and understand our great outdoors, which is why the Catskill Center is excited to partner with the NYSDEC at the Catskills Visitor Center to celebrate Outdoors Day. As the gateway to the forever wild lands of the Catskill Park, we look forward to introducing Outdoors Day participants to the Catskills, the many outdoor recreational pursuits that our region has to offer, and the responsible stewardship of those lands during recreation.”

Catskill Stewards Program Launches for 2019 Summer Season!

Beginning in May, the Catskill Center’s Stewardship Program for the Catskill Park is more than doubling in size for the 2019 season. The Catskill Stewards Program began in 2018 with two stewards stationed full-time for the summer season at the Peekamoose Blue Hole. This year there will be full-time Stewards located at the Peekamoose Blue Hole and the popular Kaaterskill Falls, with a part-time Steward located at the Platte Clove Preserve.

The Stewards provide outreach and education with an energy of welcome. They provide the critical link between visitors and the protection of the unique natural resources that comprise the Catskill Park.

In 2018, the Catskill Center’s Blue Hole Stewards interacted with over 15,000 people! This year, the Catskill Center expects the numbers to grow exponentially alongside the new locations.

A busy summer weekend at Kaaterskill Falls attracts well over 2,000 people a day! The Stewards will be put to the test while providing critical information for visitors and hikers about places to visit, trail conditions, impacts harming the area, and best practices to stay safe while having an enjoyable visit.

As visitors continue to come to the Catskills in ever increasing numbers, they bring with them the reminder that everyone needs the tools and skills necessary to enjoy the outdoors responsibly. When Stewards and Rangers are not present, litter increases, and so do the impacts that harm water quality, and natural resource protection. That’s where the Stewards of the Catskill Stewards Program step in to assist.
The Catskill Center partners with the New York State DEC on the Catskill Steward Program, working closely with DEC staff and forest rangers to ensure efforts are aligned across all sites. The program is generously supported by REI, the Rondout Neversink Stream Program, the NYSDEC, the Catskill Mountain Club and many other generous donors.

You can learn more about the program by visiting catskillcenter.org/catskillstewardsprogram.

Catskill Mountains Story Festival
The Catskills Visitor Center is hosting the Catskill Mountain Story Festival from 10 am to 4 pm on Saturday, June 15 at the Catskills Visitor Center in Mt. Tremper. It is the fourth annual celebration of the past, present, and future of writing in the Catskills. Visitors will enjoy panels and presentations by acclaimed authors, see what’s new from local small presses, engage with local libraries and nonprofits, and have opportunities to share their own stories of the Catskills. This year’s festival will feature performers and activities for all ages. There will be panel discussions on audiobooks, LGBTQ stories of the Catskills, and more. Grab lunch from food trucks and tables by Brooks BBQ or Marty’s Mercantile and enjoy a special luncheon performance of Catskills folk stories and songs by folklorist and musician Billy Scribbles. The Creativity Caravan and local artist Star Nigro will offer hand-on arts activities for all ages. In celebration of the region’s historical stories and Path Through History Weekend, the 1st Ulster Militia will stage an all-day Revolutionary War encampment. The popular Tremper-skil Boys will close out the festival with a concert of Catskills songs and a square dance for new and experienced dancers. Visit catskillsvisitorcenter.org for the full schedule.

Catskill Park Advisory Committee
Did you know that there is a group of Catskill Park stakeholders working together to address issues of park-wide importance in the Catskills? The Catskill Park Advisory Committee (CPAC) was established several years ago by the Catskill Center in consultation with New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC). Currently chaired by the Catskill Center, the CPAC is a group of representatives from local governments and organizations, and provides a forum for communities and user groups of the Catskill Park and the Catskill Watershed. The purpose of the Committee is to provide assistance, advice and guidance to the DEC, the New York City Department of Environmental Protection and other land managers in the management of the New York State Forest Preserve, the Catskill Park and the Catskill Watershed.

Meetings are held quarterly and are open to the public. If you’d like to learn more, join the mailing list or attend the next meeting, please contact the Catskill Center at 845 586 2611 or e-mail them at cccd@catskillcenter.org.

Visit the Catskill Park’s Visitor Center
Before you embark on any adventure in the Catskills, be sure to stop at the Park’s official Visitor Center, the Congressman Maurice D. Hinchey Catskills Visitor Center! Located on Route 28 in Mount Tremper, the Catskills Visitor Center is your gateway to Catskills and the official visitor center for the Catskill Park, where you can learn about the vast outdoor recreational opportunities in the area as well as discover Catskills communities and rich cultural and natural history.

The Catskills Visitor Center is open seven days a week from 9 am to 4 pm. At the Center, you can explore the interpretive exhibits, gather information and speak with knowledgeable staff about the Catskill Park and Region. In addition to information, exhibits and staff, the Center is home to more than a mile of walking paths, fishing access to the Esopus Creek and a sculpture trail, featuring the work of local artists and artists who have been inspired by the Catskills.
The Catskills Visitor Center is also home to numerous events and activities throughout the summer, including Family Days, interactive workshops and presentations, a Catskill Mountain Book Festival, guided outdoor adventures and more!

You can visit catskillsvisitorcenter.org, call 845 688 3369, or e-mail info@catskillcenter.org for more information. The Catskills Visitor Center is located at 5096 Route 28 in Mount Tremper.

Give Back to the Catskills

The natural beauty, the majesty of the mountains, the protection of the Catskill Forest Preserve, the region’s natural and cultural resources, all need your help! By supporting the work of the Catskill Center, you support: stewardship of our Catskill Park and its vast natural resources; the Center’s collaborative spirit as we convene, create partnerships and facilitate discussions that benefit the region; and the Center’s work to support education, arts and culture throughout the Catskills.

“HOUSE FOR SALE”

Oval, square, patterned borders where paintings and photos hung.
Light outlines on suntanned floors where bureaus and dressers stood.

Soldier rows of holes framing rooms where tackless carpet lay.
Colored threads hiding under splinters, hanging on where padding tore away.

Dust bunnies, hairpins, lost screws, fossilized in sticky corners, buried in wood floors, cracks expanded with age.

Blurred corners of windows, layers of grime in places where hands could not reach and eyes could not see.

Patina etched in Formica, drawn into ceramic tile;
scratches give testament to pots too heavy to be carried.

Shards of china lie nestled in far cupboard corners; chips and fragments of porcelain long ago consigned to cardboard cartons.

Old stuffed teddy, one ear ripped, too old, not loved enough, matted by tiny, moist fingers, sitting alone in the corner . .

keeps company with a half-used roll of toilet tissue, a sliver of family-sized soap and a straw broom, fewer bristles than more.

Bare light bulbs replace fixtures dust coated from years of attic dwelling;
swinging even in slight breezes, casting long shadows in empty rooms.

Room freshener, hairspray and baby powder, fried onions, ammonia and oven cleaner, scented candles, cologne and potpourri, fragrances dissipate even as the van is loaded.

Refrigerator’s chocolate fingerprints, one yellow jelly bean beneath it;
pencil mark measurements on the back of the kitchen door.

One look back and we are gone.

—Judy Lewis

UNPREPARED

It never occurred to me that you would die first.
I was, simply, unprepared.

It never dawned on me that I would remain.
I was, frankly, unready.

It never crossed my mind that I’d be left behind.
I was, honestly, surprised.

You never gave me time to say “good-bye.”
We needed a moment for a farewell.

You never told me that you were about to leave.
I would rather have stayed by your side.

You never gave me time to say “good-bye.”
We needed a moment for a farewell.

I always said that you would be fine.
You were, before we met.
But, no one ever said the same of me and I’m not.

—Judy Lewis
NEVER YOUNG

When she was eight
Maryam danced
in her new white toe shoes with long streaming satin ribbons.

When she turned twelve
Minka felt her first kiss
from the red-headed boy who lived just down the road.

In her seventeenth year
Danska graduated from gymnasium.
She received an award for her poetry.
Her mother could not restrain tears.

Broynka was engaged at eighteen.
Her young man was a tailor’s apprentice.
They would marry in the springtime.
Loving him gave her a warm pink glow.

A klezmer band played at Basha’s wedding.
Family and friends came to celebrate.
The bride wore her grandma’s gown.
The scent of gardenias was everywhere.

Yudit’s baby was born in May.
At the bris, they named him Hirsh.
Surely he would grow tall like his father and be learned like his grandpa.

But the truth must be told.
Maryam never learned to dance.
Minka never felt her first kiss.
Danska never started school.

Broynka had no time to love.
Basha never smelled gardenias
and Yudit’s baby was no one’s namesake.

Maryam and Minka, Danska and Broynka,
Basha and Yudit, died in the fiery ovens of Bergen Belsen.
None had a chance to live.

The Catskill Mountain Foundation’s Kaaterskill Fine Arts Gallery is delighted to present the textile-based works of Ann Clarke. Ms. Clarke is Associate Professor of Visual Art and Dean Emeritus at Syracuse University.

Her work transcends the traditional boundaries of textile art forms, joining the realms of drawing and painting with a distinct visual presence and engaging content.

Director, Kaaterskill Fine Arts Gallery
This body of work is connected by the use of text, readable and not—a found letter, old study notes and archived images of papers from historic figures long gone—sometimes layered and juxtaposed with figurative images from past and present reflecting a constantly fluid expression of time.

I live at an intersection where my present life meets with caring for my 98.5-year-old mother who is physically robust, but whose mind is ravaged by dementia. For her, shifting shards of her life stick and unstick, fold and reform resulting in momentary reconstructed narratives that affirm and unnervingly challenge my understandings.

Ideas are powerful. I have always cared about accuracy, about pinning down that which can be, as a truth. Given how complex truth can be this strategy often resulted in work that sprung from linear time lines—short stories with a beginning, middle and end, so to speak. The extremely relative experience of time I witness and share with my mother has upended some of these foundational ideas I have used to situate myself in the world, in time, in life.

I care deeply about making work that is inherently an invitation. Textiles are ubiquitous, from a well-worn dish cloth to a carefully cleaned and stored wedding dress—spanning the depth of meaning from the everyday to the special and unique. Embracing function in the obvious form of the rug in this series seemed most in keeping with ideas of what is foundational, quite simply that which is stood upon, and putting the rug on the wall, is literally reorienting that idea.

I pursue work that is compelling and beautiful as well as dissonant and unnerving.

LIGHT FALLING
LAURA ACROSS TAYLOR
DARK PLACES

JULY 6–AUGUST 18, 2019
Opening Reception: Saturday, July 20, 4-7pm

Summer is approaching fast, and beer-drinking weather is already here. You'll find some of the best craft brews in the nation in Ulster County—a hotbed for hop heads and beer geeks. The soil is rich and diverse, and area artisan brewers are passionate, talented, and deeply devoted to making Ulster County a drinking mecca. Some of these beers you'll find in establishments across the Hudson Valley, some you'll only have the privilege of tasting in the room where it was brewed. Whatever your sip of choice, chances are you can find a homegrown version of it here. Here's a summer guide to the craft beers of Ulster County.

Arrowood Farms & Outpost
Accord, New Paltz
Arrowood’s home base is on a sprawling farm in Accord, but there’s also a tasting room and farm market in New Paltz. At both locations you’ll find quintessential New York craft beer made with organic hops and grain grown on the farm.

Clemson Brothers Brewery at the Gilded Otter
New Paltz
This popular brewpub is a hopping spot in the heart of New Paltz, and features not only its award-winning microbrews, but a full-menu restaurant serving mouth-watering plates like pear gorgonzola pizza and an eclectic selection of “Brewer’s Plates” (think blue plates but better).

Great Life Brewing
Kingston
You can taste Great Life’s hand-crafted beer at restaurants and stores all over the mid-Hudson Valley—or you can pop in for an afternoon tasting at their Kingston taproom.
Hudson Ale Works

Highland

This tavern and brewpub is located just a stone’s throw from the beautiful Walkway Over the Hudson. With a menu of bar snacks and rotating beers, it’s the perfect stop before or after a leisurely stroll across the Hudson.

Keegan Ales

Kingston

This esteemed Kingston brewery has been at it for 16 years, building a stellar national reputation for itself along the way. The New York Times named Keegan’s Mother’s Milk stout one of the “10 best Stouts in North America,” well-deserved praise.

New Paltz Brewing Co.

Pfälzerbräu

Wawarsing

This family-owned mountain brewery and taproom in the Shawangunks has a decidedly German bent to its recipes, with a rotation of brews ranging from the traditional Hefeweizen to innovative creations like a Sauerkraut Sour.

Rough Cut Brewing Company

Kerhonkson

Rough Cut has everything: Belgian Dubbels & Tripels, Winter Saisons, English Pale Ales, even a coffee and raspberry Imperial Stout. They’re heavy on the hearty, with a full menu of food to match, including dinner specials, burger nights, and wing nights.

The Brewery at Dutch Ale House

Saugerties

The Dutch Ale House is a full-service gastropub and brewery that’s been around since 1933. They serve handcrafted, small-batch beers brewed on site, but they also have a full bar of wine, cocktails and import beers, along with a delectable menu of gourmet tavern fare.

The Brewery at Bacchus

New Paltz

Bacchus Restaurant is a popular New Paltz haunt with an incredible menu. But their three-barrel brewery is where the real magic lies. Try the Wild Nothing—a crushable, juicy session IPA—or the Tiny Miracle, a farmhouse ale enlivened by oak aging and refermentation atop California Sauvignon grapes.

Woodstock Brewing

Phoenicia

One of the newest additions to Ulster County’s craft-brew scene, Woodstock Brewing offers a well-rounded beer menu ranging from the light, citrus-y Woodstock Lager to the darkly caffeinated Mighty Z, a high-octane Oatmeal Coffee Stout whose tagline is, fittingly, “No sleep till Brooklyn.”

Yard Owl Craft Brewery

Gardiner

Two friends + One passion = Yard Owl Brewery, a mash-up of old-world sensibilities with new American brewing standards. Yard Owl focuses on creating top-notch beer with the finest ingredients and careful attention to detail.

Always remember to imbibe responsibly. Learn more about Ulster County’s hopping hops-and-grain culture and start planning your beer tour at UlsterCountyAlive.com.

Hieracium aurantiacum is a daisy family “weed” common in lawns and open sunny spots. Some folks call this one “Devil’s Paintbrush!”
Dicentra canadensis is often misidentified as wild bleeding heart, but that showy wildflower is a different species. These beauties are closely related to D. cucullaria, and often share the same damp shady woodland habitat.
Here in the Catskills, a number of different trillium species are common and so showy! This one is Trillium undulatum and it tends to prefer drier upland woods compared to its swammier loving cousins.
Another three-leaved wildflower, Trillium erectum is sometimes called Stinking Benjamin or purple trillium. More red than purple and not very fragrant, this trillium is common in the Catskills, often seen in the same areas as trout lilies.
Looks like a garden plant, but this iris is indeed a wildflower. Iris versicolor can be found on the banks of frick Pond, as well as other wet and sunny spots around the Catskills.
Keep your eyes peeled for Platanthera grandiflora.
Not a common sight in the Catskills, these orchids are gorgeous.
The monthly photography portfolio was a regular (and very popular) feature of the Guide for many years. It is a marvelous vehicle to showcase the rich culture and beauty of the region and the talent of the region’s photographers, and we are pleased to reintroduce it into the Guide this year.

If you would like to have your photos considered for publication, please send three samples of your work to Sarah Taft at tafts@catskillmtn.org.

Claytonia virginica is a Catskill classic. Photos just cannot do justice to the lovely sight of a forest floor covered with this tiny pale pink flowers.

Look, enjoy, take photos, but please don’t pick, dig up, cut, trample, or mess with wildflowers in any other way. Sure, they might look like weeds. Maybe where you’re standing there are TONS of them. But please leave them as they are for others to enjoy.
