Woodstock Artists Association & Museum presents FAR & WIDE National
June 4 – July 18, 2021

The Woodstock Artists Association & Museum (WAAM) announces its third annual FAR & WIDE National exhibition, on view in the Main Gallery from Friday, June 4 through Sunday, July 18, 2021. This timely presentation is organized around the concept of Art Brut, a theme associated with a distancing from the mainstream. The exhibition comprises work by twenty-five artists, selected through a national call and juried by Nicelle Beauchene and Franklin Parrasch, co-founders of Parts & Labor in Beacon, NY.

FAR & WIDE National attracted 196 entries from artists across the nation and includes work in a range of media. For this year’s iteration the jurors focused on the theme of Art Brut, a French term translating to ‘raw art’, to describe works made outside the academic tradition of art making. Also referred to as ‘outsider art,’ this movement was created by Jean Dubuffet to focus on the raw expression of a vision or emotions. For this exhibition, the jurors sought works that incorporate a unique use of materiality and modes of expression, as well as works outside the conventional dictates of the art world.

In a time of a global pandemic, the selection on view is fitting in its exploration of work that accentuates isolation and originates from solitude. For example, Andrea Santos’ work, Bloom, is informed by extreme vulnerability. Julia Whitney Barnes’ Covid Collage (Wildflowers), speaks to a historical moment of upheaval while also pointing to resilience. Colleen Smiley’s Skull and Bones Alchemy 3, a work from 2018, uses fabric and patterns that actively forge the connection between art and comfort. Most fundamentally, all twenty-five works on view emphasize a singularity of style.

Exhibiting Artists

Nicelle Beauchene opened her eponymous gallery on the Lower East Side of Manhattan in 2008 to promote the work of emerging local and international artists. dialogue in the U.S. and abroad. Nicelle Beauchene was the President of the New Art Dealers Alliance from 2010-2017.

Franklin Parrasch Gallery began in 1986 with a program guided by a conscious reflection upon the process of creativity as it relates to human evolution. Over the past two decades, the gallery has established a profile of exhibiting Los Angeles artists whose careers emerged in the 1960s. The gallery consistently organizes shows that consider diverse evolutionary theories, with a focused sensitivity to the migration of ideas and aesthetic development as expressed by a wide range of artists who employ innovative practices.

In 2019, Nicelle Beauchene and Franklin Parrasch co-founded Parts & Labor Beacon, an exhibition space dedicated to staging two-person exhibitions. Creating specific conversations between younger, mid-career artists and their historically recognized predecessors, Parts & Labor Beacon’s intimate framing re-contextualizes standard histories of art. The project has worked with a range of artists including Lois Dodd, Shara Hughes, Xylor Jane, Ray Johnson, Al Loving, John McAllister, and Deborah Remington.

MARKET FARM IN TANNERSVILLE DOES MORE THAN GROW CLEAN, ORGANIC PRODUCE

FROMER MARKET GARDENS, ESTABLISHED IN 2017, GROWS VEGETABLES YEAR ROUND IN ADDITION TO OFFERING PRODUCTS FROM LOCAL & REGIONAL PRODUCERS AND INVESTS IN THE COMMUNITY THROUGH SUPPORT AND OUTREACH

Fresh, locally grown produce can be hard to come by in rural upstate towns, but Fromer Market Gardens ("FMC") has filled that void since 2017 by providing year-round fresh and organic produce to residents and visitors alike at a small farm stand located at 6120 Main Street (Route 23A) in Tannersville.

Farm Manager, Sam Metz, and her crew have tailored this year’s crop plan to meet customers’ needs, from restaurant sales, to online orders, to walk up retail shoppers. Always ready with a smile, Sam and her dog Koda will welcome you and happily answer any questions you may have.

Directly adjacent to the Hunter Tannersville Central High School, FMC often works with students during and after school, with more programs on the horizon. Additionally, Sam coordinates with the local food pantry to ensure fresh veggies get to those most in need, and the Farm Stand accepts EBT and SNAP payments.

FMC is best known for its unique salad mix that blends a variety of salanova lettuces, but don’t miss out on world-class heirloom tomatoes coming in July & August, and more potatoes and winter squashes than you could dream of by September.

At the apex of the summer you can find on-site grown shiitake mushrooms, local honey and maple syrup, snap peas, spinach, celery, zucchini, and even Japanese eggplants in a variety of colors.

In response to the shut-down days of the pandemic, FMC quickly added plantings, and reached out to other local farms and vendors to augment what was on site. In particular, finding bread makers, and dairy and meat producers enabled the Stand to offer wary consumers a way to source the ingredients for a complete meal without needing to leave the mountain top.

The farm’s year round operations are heated by a state of the art 8600 sq ft cold-weather greenhouse that includes a propagation room and a cold-storage walk in cooler in the historic barn. Up next: plans are underway to create a state-of-the art culinary kitchen on the property in order to provide an educational and economic hub for the community. Stay tuned!

If you’re looking for farm fresh seasonal ingredients for any meal, Fromer Market Gardens is the place to stop on the mountain top. FMC will be welcoming vendors over the course of the summer on the first Saturday of every month and don’t miss guest appearances by local food trucks and community events open to the public.

For more information about FMC or to reach out to Sam directly, visit www.fromermarketgardens.com and email sam@fromermg.com. See you at the Farm!

On Saturday, June 5, the Catskill Mountain Foundation and the Windham Arts Alliance will open an exhibition featuring art created by local students in response to the COVID pandemic. Called “COVID Can’t Defeat Our Kids,” the exhibition features work by students from Hunter-Tannersville Middle & High School, Gilboa-Conesville Central School, and the Platte Clove Community. The show runs through July 4.

Earlier this year, a few people in the community had the idea to gather different leaders from the Mountaintop to host a Zoom memorial to honor those in our community lost to COVID. People from several organizations quickly stepped up to organize the event. Sarah Finn from the Catskill Mountain Foundation, Paul & Sheila Trautman of the Windham Arts Alliance, Jonathan Gross from Mountaintop Progressives, Carol Slutzky-Tenerowicz from the Mountaintop Interfaith Committee, and Carolyn Rigs of the Hunter Foundation all helped to plan the event. The purpose really was to get people together so that we could grieve,” said Sarah. “Back in January, when it was cold out and everybody was staying in, it just felt like the right time to bring our interfaith leaders together to speak to our community.” Leaders from Interfaith and community organizations, as well as local musicians, were eager to participate, to bring everyone together as a united front of comfort and hope to residents of the Mountaintop.

Teachers from three local schools were also eager to get their students to participate: Ritamary Vining from Hunter-Tannersville Middle and High Schools, Jana Tyree from Gilboa-Conesville Central School, and Ebbo Moody from the Platte Clove Community in Elka Park each gave their students a simple directive: draw how you feel about COVID. The results are a remarkable testimony to the ability of kids to be resilient, expressive, and insightful. And the kids were certainly eager to express themselves: over 60 local students participated. Some of the drawings are hopeful, colorful, and fun; some of them express frustration; some express sadness. They’re all remarkable and moving. This exhibition will bring all of the drawings together in one space for the first time—it is sure to be a powerful experience.

The exhibition will be open during movie theater hours, Friday from 6:30 to 9:30 pm, and Saturday and Sunday from 3:30 to 9:30 pm. The Doctorow Center for the Arts is located at 7971 Main Street in the Village of Hunter. For more information, please visit catskillmtn.org or windhamartsalliance.org.

Since its opening in February 2021, Greater Things Roasters has amped up the coffee scene in the upper Hudson Valley. Their first coffee bar in West Coxsackie has been met with local excitement as a home-grown dream thriving in spite of the pandemic.

The family business was started by home roasters turned coffee pros Wayne and Kerri Flach. The couple grew up in the town of Coxsackie, where they’re now running the business and raising four children all under the age of seven.

The vision for the coffee shop came about after Wayne—who had been roasting for home use and farmers markets since 2014—attended a roasting program led by longtime specialty coffee educator and Vermont Artisan founder Mané Alves in 2019. Then, of course, 2020 happened, and the wholesale roasting side of the small business largely dried up.

At the same time, the couple were looking at a commercial space to open their first cafe. Wayne explains, “We decided to move forward with our plans, regardless of the pandemic. In July 2020, we started working on an old sign shop, which required a total renovation. Kerri did all of the design work and I did most of the construction.”

Coffees come from the off-site roastery about five miles up the road, where Wayne turns out five- to six-pound batches in a BC Roasters machine. Wayne said that a large part of the coffee sourcing focus is on “ethically sourced gateway coffees.”

Coffees within that portfolio—often sourced with help from Vermont-based green coffee trader Hacienda La Minita—might include a crowd-pleasing FTO Sumatra roasted on the darker side, a shadegrown Costa Rican coffee roasted medium to bring out sweet notes of maple or honeysuckle, or a lighter-roasted naturally-processed coffee from one of Ethiopia’s prized coffee regions.

Upstate dwellers and visitors now have access to all kinds of specialty house-roasted espresso drinks, batch brews, and kegged still and nitro cold brews. French presses and Kalita Wave pourovers are also offered alongside a range of single-origin and blended teas supplied by Art of Tea.

Exciting weekly coffee and tea specials keep things fresh, along with a selection of hyperlocal baked goods from the likes of Happy Belly (Hudson, NY), See & Be (Cairo, NY), Our Daily Bread (Chatham, NY), Rolling Pin Pastries (South Cairo, NY), and Cider Belly (Albany, NY). Slow pasteurized milk is sourced from the family-run dairy operation Meadowbrook Farms (Clarksville, NY). Consider dietary restrictions covered with many vegan and gluten-free options in the milk department and pastry case.

Greater Things is also planning bigger things for its roastery—namely, a move into a historic, larger renovated building right on the Hudson River in downtown Coxsackie, which will put production on full display. The move will increase the company’s capacity, as well as its public profile with the downtown area of Coxsackie going through a large redevelopment with a hotel, event space, and retail shopping all on the riverfront.

Take a trip today to enjoy the finest micro-batch coffee roasted for the upper Hudson Valley. Patio seating is available.

Greater Things Roasters is located at 10 Hope Plaza in Coxsackie, NY. For more information, please call them at 518 965 8967 or visit greaterthingsroasters.com

Sydney Frazier, an interior designer who usually works out of a his design studio in Manhattan, has long been a weekend fixture in Hunter-Tannersville, especially during the winter months, where the avid skier is usually found on the slopes. But when the shutdown last March changed the nature of his business, he and his husband (who grew up in Tannersville), relocated to their Elka Park-area home to ride out the pandemic. “My design work basically stopped,” he says. “My clients went underground like the rest of us, so suddenly I really wasn’t doing a lot. I found myself looking for a creative outlet to fill the void.”

Frazier says he’d been thinking about owning a store for a long time. “Actually, it’s something I’d been thinking about my whole life,” he says. When he noticed that the old Hudson-Chatham Winery space on Main Street was newly empty, he reached out to the landlords. Soon he was on the lease, keys in hand, and already had a shop name in mind: Sundry (pronounced sundree.) “I kind of fell into the opportunity,” he says with a laugh.
Still, that doesn’t mean the rest of it came easily. “I definitely had some sleepless nights about it!” he says of the venture.

“Sourcing goods during a pandemic was difficult; there were no trade shows, and no in-person shopping. But because I’d been thinking about having a store for so long, I already had already compiled a list of vendors I thought I’d like to carry and then I just had to go with my gut for the rest.”

Frazier also set about trying to find as many local vendors as he could. “Not everything I carry is from the Catskills region.”
But they are some of his bestsellers. “The Catskills Candles Studio are my bestsellers—they’re locally made, beautifully scented candles, and also come from a pandemic-born business—the owner started making them during the shutdown and I was one of the first places to start carrying her product, so we sort of started out together. I also love the books I carry that are either about or written by people in the Catskills. I’ve also started to carry locally made cutting boards crafted by a guy in Tannersville, who, also as a creative outlet, started making beautiful household goods out of black walnut. He’s a very, very small maker, and each one is unique. I am fortunate he allowed me to carry them.”

Frazier says he had no idea how much he’d love owning Sundry. “Meeting interesting people is that best part,” he says. “That interaction that I get to have with all the fascinating people on the mountaintop, whether they’re full-timers, weekenders or tourists staying at the nearby hotels has been incredible. Also, I’m completely thrilled with how well-received the store has been. People seem excited that we’re here.”

As the world has recently reopened, Frazier’s design business has picked up once again, but he says now he has the best of both worlds. “I have weekend hours at the store, so I can have my decorator life down in the city during the week. In moving forward, my ongoing goal is to find more local and interesting vendors, so I can offer as many beautiful, locally-made items to people as possible.”

WORKSPACE
6041 Main Street, Tannersville
646 263 1615

Across the street from Sundry, another longtime weekender, Gillian Telling found herself in a similar situation to Sydney Frazier last March—but with a stressful twist. After she and her family decided to stay in Tannersville full time, they found themselves trying to do their remote work and remote schooling for two kids without broadband Internet. “We’d been coming here every weekend for a decade,” says Telling, also an avid snowboarder and Hunter season pass holder. “We used to love that the Internet was this slow, satellite Internet so we could focus on hiking, exploring, and just being outside in the yard. But as things went fully digital, trying to get anything done was impossible.” They rented a one-room office on Main Street but found that it was too crammed for the whole family at once. “Having four people on Zoom meetings next to each other is no one’s idea of a good time,” she says.

She noticed the former Antiques Annex next door was also empty, and like Frazier, inquired about the rent and soon found herself planning on opening a public coworking space for anyone... in a similar situation. “Everyone thought I was crazy to open a public space since it was a pandemic and people were still fully isolating. But I didn’t have a lot of options, and this seemed like the best idea!” she says.

Two permanent tenants signed up: Phil Walsh of Black Bear Custom Framing, who sees clients by appointment on weekends, and Andrea Tobin, an artist who owns the Marla Cielo handbag line. (Tobin’s art graces the walls and is also for sale.) Now she has two other permanent office tenants, plus five work stations free for daily or weekly drop-ins. There is also a privacy “Zoom Room,” snacks, coffee, tea and a printer/copier. “I love coming into the office every day to get my work done,” says Telling, who is also an editor at People magazine. “This is such a cozy spot, and I can walk to several restaurants to pick up lunch. I also get to meet all sorts of new people who come in, whether they’re renting a desk or just checking out the place. Plus, during downtime I get to pop over to Sundry and have a chat with Sydney across the street—Main Street is now our version of the watercooler!”

She too is hoping WorkSpace remains in place as things return to normal. “The ‘new normal’ for a lot of people is going to be continuing to work from home, but sometimes you need a change of environment, or even some ‘coworkers’ to chat with during the day,” she says. “We’re here for that. We’re also available for offsite meetings, book clubs, and hopefully evening events as things open up a bit more.”

Since its release in 1990, the documentary Paris Is Burning has received critical acclaim for its depiction of the New York drag ball scene and of voguing as a powerful expression of personal pride in the face of racism, homophobia, and the stigma of the AIDS crisis. To honor the film’s thirtieth anniversary, Works & Process commissioned Omari Wiles, founding father of the House of Oricci and a legend within the ballroom community, to produce New York Is Burning. With its premiere at the Guggenheim postponed due to the pandemic, the project was supported with a summer 2020 Works & Process bubble residency at Kaatsbaan Cultural Park, where Wiles continued to develop the commission for his company, Les Ballet Afrik. The residency culminated in a filmed performance at Lincoln Center, serving as an affirmation of love, acceptance, and joy.

Just as Paris Is Burning did for New York in 1980s, New York Is Burning reflects the aspirations, desires, and yearnings of a diverse group of dancers in a city beset by health, race, and financial crises. Wiles’s new work centers on the dancers for whom the dance company serves as a surrogate family including Kya Azeen, Eva Bust A’Move, Algin Ford-Sterling, Alora Martinez, Shireen Rahimi, Milerka Rodriguez, Kameron N. Saunders, Karma Styrlz, and Yuki Sukezane. In preparation for its official premiere, New York Is Burning will receive a second bubble residency. When it premieres, the piece will bring ballroom to the Guggenheim in a work featuring Wiles’s AfrikFusion, a style that combines traditional African dances and Afrobeat with house dance and vogue.

According to dance educator and dancer LaTasha Barnes, one of the greatest disparities of the present-day dance canon is the one that exists between the African American dancer and authentic jazz dance. Barnes argues that despite the foundational role of jazz dance as a source of globally celebrated popular Black dance forms, there is a lack of contextual and performative knowledge of jazz in the African American artist, which does a disservice to the expressive purpose and possibility that is dance. With the focus and dedicated time afforded by a residency, Barnes aims to bridge the knowledge gap with a group of engaged and invested dancers who desire to embody jazz alongside the Black dance traditions they currently bear. The resulting work may manifest as a choreographed jazz dance performance or an “improvography”-centered exploration of jazz and its scions.

Works & Process bubble residencies are made possible through the generous support of The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation and the Doris Duke Charitable Foundation.

While living in NJ during the 1980’s I began having an interest in photography. I attended The School of Visual Arts in Manhattan, graduated after 4 years with a BFA and pursued photography as my career path. I worked with many photographers in NYC and NJ. My interests and experience included photographing rock concerts, action-adventure sports, special effects, fashion, scenic landscapes in color and B/W. I processed and printed my own B/W film and prints, with an emphasis on B/W Infra-red.

In the 1990’s I relocated to Greene County where our family has owned property since 1980. Trying to find employment in photography was difficult. Until a few years ago I worked as a Security Guard for Windham Mountain Ski Resort for about 10 years, which left minimal time for taking pictures.

I recently purchased a digital mirrorless camera and have started taking photographs again as a serious hobby. This has created an interest in digital editing techniques. I’m currently creating images that I will use to create a website and select a platform where I will post my work.

I am also a current member of the Greene County Camera Club and CREATE Council On The Arts.

Large, lush peonies bloom as spring gives way to summer, after the daffodils and tulips fade. Their bloom period is short, just a week or two, but their outrageous beauty lingers in the memory, so that we enjoy them long after the physical blooms fade. Over 30 different species of peonies are native around the world, including Paeonia californica, native to—you guessed it—California, and Paeonia brownii, another peony native in that state.

Here in the Hudson Valley, gardeners are most familiar with Paeonia lactiflora, native in parts of Asia from Tibet through China and Siberia. This gorgeous flower has been developed into hundreds of cultivars beloved in gardens throughout Europe and North America wherever winters are cold enough to stimulate its flower buds to form, including our own Greene County.

Peony flowers are edible, with a delicate flavor echoing their scent. Medieval Europeans enjoyed a tea made from the dried, steeped petals. Fresh petals can be mixed into salads, sprinkled on desserts, or blended into homemade ice cream. The roots are used in traditional Chinese medicine, believed to be helpful for strengthening women’s reproductive health. But the symbolism of the peony in Asia is also tied to masculinity. Representing wealth, nobility and good fortune, this “king of flowers” has been favored as a traditional tattoo for Japanese men.

Easy to grow in our climate, peonies flower best when planted in full sun. The roots should be only shallowly covered, to expose them to the winter cold that stimulates their buds to form. Although they are said to be difficult to transplant, they can be moved successfully in fall after the foliage has died back, allowing a month and a half leeway before the ground freezes. Loose, loamy soil suits them best, but peonies can grow well in almost any soil that is not waterlogged. If fertilizer is used, it’s best to use only a small amount of a slow-release organic fertilizer that is low in nitrogen and high in phosphorus. Some gardeners like to place tomato cages or similar supports in their peony beds for the plants to grow through; the big blooms, especially of double and “bomb” type peonies can be too heavy for the stems to hold erect. The droopy blooms make great cut flowers, though, if you catch them in time. Renoir, Van Gogh and Monet often painted bouquets of peonies. If you grow peonies, you can enjoy bouquets just as stunning in your own home.

While spring is generally slow to come to the Catskills, June is the time when the mountains truly shake off their winter and early spring grays and the deep greens blanket the mountains. It’s a time of wildflowers and warmer temperatures, along with a few black flies! It’s also a great time to start getting out and enjoying the great outdoors, especially in the Catskills.

Catskill Center’s Stewards Program Expands For the 2021 Season

To Help Protect The Catskill Park And Educate A Growing Number of Visitors

For the 2021 summer season at the Catskill Park, the Catskill Center is doubling the number of stewards from last year, given the large increase in visitors to certain high-use areas. And, for the first time since the Catskill Center’s Catskill Stewards Program was launched, one steward will serve as a Ridge Runner.

The Ridge Runner will start the season stewarding on and near the Devil’s Path trail in Greene County, one of the Catskills’ more challenging hikes, and cover other trails as needed. Another steward will work part-time at Platte Clove while the remaining six stewards will be divided between Peekamoose Blue Hole and Kaaterskill Clove, providing coverage every day. The COVID-19 pandemic prompted a record number of visitors to Catskill Park in 2020, a 27% increase. And this season, the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (NYSDEC) is implementing new permitting regulations for the popular Peekamoose Blue Hole and surrounding areas as a response to the surge in visitors that is expected to continue this season.

“In light of the increasing number of visitors, the Catskill Center is proud to be able to increase the number of stewards and the areas that these stewards cover across the Catskill Park. With seven-day a week coverage at both the Peekamoose Blue Hole and Kaaterskill Falls, along with a new roving Ridge Runner position who will greet visitors on the trails of the Park, our stewards will be greeting thousands, if not tens of thousands of visitors a week,” says Jeff Senterman, Executive Director of the Catskill Center.

“The Catskill Center’s stewards are key to welcoming visitors to the Catskill Park, introducing them to the resources of the Catskills Visitor Center, and offering them advice on how to recreate responsibly in the Park to ensure protection of our natural resources.”

The stewards are a vital link between these locations and visitors. The Catskill Stewards Program operates in partnership with the NYSDEC at the Peekamoose Blue Hole and Kaaterskill Falls.
In Platte Clove, the program runs on the Catskill Center’s Platte Clove Preserve. Since its inception in 2018, the Catskill Stewards Program has educated and welcomed 141,226 visitors to the Catskill Forest Preserve.

The Catskill stewards began training the week of May 17 for the program’s fourth season. This year, as the state lifted many COVID-19 capacity restrictions in May, steward training is taking place using a hybrid model (part in-person, part virtual). The in-person training is all outdoors, and participants will wear masks. In 2020, the pandemic forced all training to be held virtually.

“During the 2020 season, more visitors came to the Catskills than ever before in search of refuge from the COVID-19 pandemic. This huge uptick in visitation resulted in busier trails and infrastructure across the park,” says Andy Mossey, the Catskill Center’s Stewardship & Advocacy Coordinator. “With this in mind, we are preparing for another busy season, with more planning in place to make sure we can continue to offer consistent and thoughtful information to all visitors of the Catskills.”

Stewards explain and demonstrate why responsible recreation is important, from the importance of not littering to staying on the trails. While each location has its specific needs, the common thread is natural resource protection, public awareness, and education. Without the stewards, the Catskills’ forever wild spaces are consistently in danger of being trampled or otherwise damaged because of the increasing number of visitors. Stewards help interpret the Catskill Park, provide information on alternative areas to visit, and offer directions to local businesses, which, in turn, helps the local economy.

To learn more about the Catskill Center’s Catskill Stewards Program, go to catskillcenter.org/catskillstewardsprogram. And to check in on the stewards’ work, follow us on our social media platforms.

The Catskill Stewards Program is made possible by the generous support of the NYSDEC, REI Co-op, the Rondout Neversink Stream Program, Bruderhof Community at Platte Clove, Catskill Mountain Club, Hunter Foundation, and the generous supporters of the Catskill Center.

Visit the Catskill Park’s Visitor Center
Located at 5096 Route 28 in Mount Tremper, NY, the Congressman Maurice D. Hinchey Catskills Visitor Center (CVC) is the official visitor center for the Catskill Park. Operated and managed by the Catskill Center, staff are available at the CVC with information, maps and all the advice needed to plan a Catskill adventure. A walk-up service window at the building is now every day except for Wednesdays, from 10 am to 3 pm. Visitors who wear a mask and follow social distancing protocols can get their Catskill questions answered in person, receive tourism literature and make purchases at the CVC’s shop. The CVC building, including the restrooms inside, are not yet open to the public, but a port-a-john is available in the parking area.

CVC staff are also available to answer questions about the Catskills and the Catskill Park via email at info@catskillcenter.org or phone 845 688 3369.

In addition to the walk-up service window, 1.5 miles of trails on the CVC’s grounds, including the (roughly) 0.5 mile ADA accessible Interpretive Loop Trail, are open to the public daily. The 80-foot tall Upper Esopus Fire Tower, which was constructed and opened last fall, will also be open daily to visitors. Picnic tables are available on site for those who wish to enjoy a picnic lunch.

Visitors can explore the ever expanding resources available online for the CVC on the web at catskillsvisitorcenter.org and on the CVC’s Facebook page at facebook.com/catskillsvisitorcenter.

Hiking and Knowing the Catskills
I’ve been hiking a lot over the past year. Of course, much of my exploring has been in the Catskills, including my completion of the Catskill 3500 peaks earlier in 2019. In part, I have my husband, a thru-hiker of the Appalachian Trail and overall outdoor lover and guide, to thank for being my constant cheerleader and inspiring me to get outside. The other reason is that I wanted to see the Catskills and really know them. Having grown up

#RecreateResponsibly in the Catskills
The #RecreateResponsibly guidelines give some sound advice on how to get outdoors right now. When you choose to recreate responsibly, you are doing your part to keep yourself and others safe and healthy.

Know Before you Go:
Check the status of the place you want to visit. If it is closed, don’t go. If it’s crowded, have a plan B.

Plan Ahead:
Prepare for facilities to be closed, pack lunch and bring essentials like hand sanitizer and a mask.

Stay Close to Home:
This is not the time to travel long distances to recreate. Most places are only open for day use.

Practice Physical Distancing:
Adventure only with your immediate household. Be prepared to cover your nose and mouth and give others space. If you are sick, stay home.

Play It Safe:
Slow down and choose lower-risk activities to reduce your risk of injury. Search and rescue operations and health care resources are both strained.

Leave No Trace:
Respect public lands and communities and take your garbage with you, including disposable gloves, and masks.

We all have a shared responsibility to care for these places and ensure they remain for future generations to enjoy. Lead by example and join the Catskill Center and the Catskills Visitor Center in learning how to #RecreateResponsibly at recreateresponsibly.org.
hiking in the region, I found myself often relying on my recollection of an area when having conversations with stakeholders, instead of more recently knowing the place intimately. A year of hiking on more than 460 miles of trail (and bushwacks) has strengthened in me a sense of place and a reconnection to the glory that is our Catskill Mountains.

The Catskill Mountains were the first mountains I grew up scrambling around, cutting my teeth and exploring with my dad. Next, he and I took to the Adirondacks which would eventually prepare me for when I left for college in New England, where the mountains are bigger, summits rise above treeline and there is a knife edge in Maine so narrow that my knees were left shaking at the top—amazing, breathtaking, and challenging. My time spent out West to see the Sierras, the Cascades and many more can also be perfectly described by any adjective of wonder.

However, no matter what beautiful place I found myself, I was always happy to come home to the Catskills throughout those two decades away from them. Even if I was just back for a weekend, it was energizing and refreshing—special in a way that no other place could be. When asked what my favorite place was, I’d always respond with “The Catskills.” Once you experience the Catskills, they infuse into your bones, becoming a part of you and leaving them unforgettable.

When I decided to lace up my hiking boots and explore the Catskills once again, it wasn’t for the physical challenge or to check peaks off a list (and definitely not for the bugs and wet weather we had last year), but it was to reconnect with the mountains that first defined me and have always held a very special place in my heart. That I could do all that again with someone I love was even better. After 21 years, we found new ways to bond: over grueling 19 mile hikes through mud and nettles, fueling our hiker hunger at a Chinese buffet, or just getting ourselves back home, sitting on our porch and treasuring the fact that we live in one of the most extraordinary places around.

What did I learn after all those peaks, those trail miles and miles of relatively untouched wilderness we bushwhacked through? The Catskill Mountains are extraordinary and there is magic in these mountains. All this effort reinforced my strong belief that the Catskills are worth protecting and that our efforts to protect them are working, as we have tens of thousands of acres of wilderness just hours from one of the greatest metropolitan regions in United States. The greatest lesson? The Catskills inspire. They inspire awe, reverence and create a sense of place deep in your being that makes you realize you are right where you belong.

That’s why I am honored to be able to serve the Catskills in my role as Executive Director of the Catskill Center and so fully
